The Honorable Rick Perry
The Honorable David Dewhurst
The Honorable Thomas R. Craddick
Members of the 79th Legislature
Economic Development Corporations

Fellow Texans:

I am pleased to present this biennial report on the activities of economic development corporations in Texas, as required by House Bill 1410, 75th Legislature.

Each year, development corporations are required to submit a one-page Economic Development Corporation Report to the Comptroller, either in hard copy or online. My office then compiles the two years of information into a biennial report that is presented to the Legislature on or before November 1 of each even-numbered year.

City sales tax revenue dedicated to economic development increased to nearly $376.9 million in fiscal 2004 and nearly $418.7 million in fiscal 2005. This tax continues to be the state's primary local revenue source for economic development.

My Local Government Assistance Division and I are grateful for the cooperation of the staff and governing boards of the economic development corporations, as well as the city officials that were instrumental in gathering and reporting the required information. We commend them for their dedication to the important task of creating and maintaining a strong climate for economic development in their communities and for our state.

I am also pleased to inform you that this report is available on my Window on State Government Web site at www.window.state.tx.us/lga/edcr0005/.

Please know that my staff and I stand ready to assist you as you deliberate this information during the coming session of the Legislature. Thanks for all that you do for Texas.

Sincerely,

Carole Keeton Strayhorn
Texas Comptroller

Executive Summary

In each even-numbered year since the passage of H.B. 1410 in 1997, the Comptroller of Public Accounts has prepared a report for the Legislature summarizing the activities of economic development corporations (EDCs) during the preceding two years. To assist the Comptroller in obtaining the requested information, H.B. 1410 also required all §4A and §4B development corporations to file an annual report with the Comptroller's office by February 1 of each year, based on the previous fiscal year.

More than 600 §4A and §4B economic development corporations operated in Texas during fiscal 2004 and 2005 (Appendix A and Appendix B), reporting total revenues for those years of more than $1.1 billion, and total expenditures of slightly less than $1.1 billion. This report provides a statewide analysis of the corporations' primary economic development objectives, totals and types of revenues and expenditures for the two fiscal years and a discussion of the corporations' capital assets. In addition, detailed charts arranged alphabetically by city name and corporation type examine the reported information for each EDC.

The Comptroller's office provides a free copy of this report to all §4A and §4B corporations. The report is also available on the Comptroller's Web site at <http://www.window.state.tx.us/lga/edcr0005/>.

History of §4A and §4B Economic Development Corporations

Since 1979, Texas law has allowed cities to form economic development corporations to attract businesses and create job opportunities. The Legislature amended the Development Corporation Act of 1979 in 1989 and again in 1991 to allow eligible cities to adopt a dedicated sales and use tax to fund development projects.

The authority to enact a local sales and use tax for economic development is provided in Vernon's

Annotated Civil Statutes Article 5190.6, Sections §4A and §4B; therefore, economic development corporations are commonly referred to as either §4A or §4B corporations. Cities must seek voter approval to levy a §4A, §4B or both types of economic development sales taxes.

The act requires a city that determines to levy either or both of these taxes to establish a development corporation to administer and oversee the expenditure of the resulting funds. A board of directors, whose members are appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the city's governing body, oversees the development corporation.

Upon receipt of the sales tax from the Comptroller's office, each city must deliver the funds to its development corporation. The corporation's board of directors makes all decisions regarding the use of this local revenue in undertaking various projects, although the city retains oversight authority and must approve all programs and expenditures of the corporation.

For a more complete discussion of §4A and §4B corporations, refer to the Comptroller's office Publication #96-302, Economic Development Sales Tax, which is available at http://www.window.state.tx.us/taxinfo/taxpubs/tx96_302.html.

Reporting Requirements

In 1997, H.B. 1410 added §4C to the act, which requires all §4A and §4B development corporations to file an annual report with the Comptroller's office by February 1

Comptroller Assistance Available

The Local Government Assistance (LGA) Section of the Comptroller's office provides technical assistance to existing corporations as well as cities and other individuals or organizations interested in creating an economic development corporation.

In addition to creating and maintaining various publications both in hard copy and on the Comptroller's Web site, during fiscal 2004 and 2005, LGA staff made more than 40 economic development sales tax presentations before nearly 3,000 individuals in cities and counties throughout the state. They also handled nearly 2,000 telephone calls from individuals requesting economic development information or assistance.

Individuals seeking assistance with economic development may contact the LGA section of the Comptroller's office toll-free at 1-800-531-5441, ext. 3-4679.

of each year, based on the corporations' previous fiscal year. By law, the report must include the corporation's primary economic development objectives, total revenues and expenditures for the preceding fiscal year, types of revenues and expenditures and a list of the corporation's capital assets.

To assist corporations in this process, the Comptroller provides information packets containing the required report form to all known §4A and §4B corporations in December of each year. The packets also are mailed to cities that held successful elections for the adoption of one or both sales taxes in the previous year.

The report form is legislatively restricted to a single page in length, and can be submitted to the Comptroller by mail or fax or completed online via a secure Web site with a unique log-in code for each corporation that is changed annually (Appendix K). In all, 606 corporations provided data to the Comptroller for fiscal 2004 and 624 did so for fiscal 2005. For fiscal 2005, 197 of the 624 corporations filed their reports via the Internet. The form and the reporting history for each corporation may be viewed at <<https://ecpa.cpa.state.tx.us/edcr/EdcrSearch.jsp>>.

In each even-numbered year, the Comptroller's office is required to prepare a compiled biennial report that must be presented to the Legislature on or before November 1 of that year. The first Comptroller report was presented to the Legislature in 1998 and contained fiscal 1997 data. Subsequent reports submitted in each even-numbered year contained data for the prior two fiscal years.

Key Findings

By law, the annual Economic Development Corporation Report that corporations send to the Comptroller each year must include the sources and uses of funds, primary economic development objectives and a list of the types of capital assets held by the corporations.

Key findings here and in the subsequent chapters are discussed separately for each of these primary categories and are organized by fiscal year.

Sources of Funds

In fiscal 2004 and 2005, sales tax revenues remain the major source of revenue for all economic development corporations (Appendix F and Appendix G). Although total sales tax revenues increased for both §4A and §4B corporations over the two-year period, total revenues fell by $7.7 million, from $571.0 million in fiscal 2004 to $563.3 million in fiscal 2005. The net decrease in revenues is attributable to a sharp decline in bond proceeds and loans (Exhibit 1).

What is the §4A Sales Tax?

The §4A tax, authorized in 1989, is essentially limited in use to industrial and manufacturing facilities, recycling facilities, distribution centers, small warehouse facilities, closed or realigned military bases, business airport facilities and port-related facilities.

The 1997 Legislature adopted H.B. 1525, which allows §4A corporations to undertake projects that were eligible under §4B of the act but at the time were not eligible under §4A. Before this is done, however, a city must publish notice, hold a public hearing and obtain voter approval. This legislation allows a §4A corporation to undertake most §4B-type projects without having to change from a §4A corporation to a §4B corporation.

At the end of fiscal 2005, 211 cities had adopted the §4A economic development sales taxes.

What is the §4B Sales Tax?

The 1991 Legislature added §4B to the act. This allowed greater flexibility in the use of revenues. Generally, allowable §4B expenditures include not only those available under §4A, but also projects that contribute to the quality of life in the community, such as park-related facilities, professional and amateur sports and athletic facilities, tourism and entertainment facilities, affordable housing, or other improvements or facilities that promote new or expanded business enterprises that create or retain primary jobs.

The 1999 Legislature expanded the allowable uses of economic development sales tax revenues by adding job training, targeted infrastructure, job creation and retention and educational facilities to the definition of "project." Expenditures for targeted infrastructure must be related to an authorized activity under the act.

At the end of fiscal 2005, 413 cities had §4B economic development corporations.

Exhibit 2 illustrates the relative importance of sales taxes as a source of §4A corporation revenue for various city sizes. Sales taxes increased in importance from fiscal 2004 to fiscal 2005 in cities with populations of 5,000 or less; 15,001 to 30,000; and greater than 75,000. For the latter two city types, the increase appears to be a direct result of a reduction in the revenue share attributed to Bond Proceeds/Loans Obtained. For the smaller cities, the slight increase in sales tax revenues as a percentage of total revenues appears to be the result of subtle shifts in several categories.

Exhibit 3 examines §4B corporation revenue sources as a percentage of total revenue, again by city size. From fiscal 2004 to fiscal 2005, the share of total revenues attributable to sales taxes increased in cities with populations in the range of 5,001 to 15,000; 15,001 to 30,000; and greater than 75,000. The shift appears to be the direct result of a reduction in the share of revenue attributed to Bond Proceeds/Loans Obtained.

Uses of Funds

For fiscal 2004, the 606 corporations reported outlays of $527.1 million (Appendix H). Fiscal 2005 reflected a 4 percent increase in spending, with 624 corporations reporting total expenditures of $550.9 million (Appendix I and Exhibit 4).

Since the increase in total dollars could be the result of new corporations, it is more useful to examine the type of expenditures to determine which categories are rising or falling as a percentage of total expenditures. As shown in Exhibit 5, §4A corporations' expenditures for personnel and administrative costs are higher than the corresponding expenditures of §4B corporations.

How is the fiscal year determined?

Most corporations reporting in fiscal 2005 adopted a fiscal year corresponding to their sponsoring city. A total of 518, or 83 percent, of the corporations listed October 1 through September 30 as the corporation's fiscal year. Forty, or 6.4 percent, listed the calendar year of January 1 through December 31 as their fiscal year and 22, or 3.5 percent, listed July 1 through June 30. Forty-four adopted other fiscal years, accounting for the remaining 7.1 percent.

Capital costs represented the largest outlays for all corporations in both fiscal years, at about 40 percent of all expenditures. For §4B corporations, the second-highest expenditure category in both fiscal years was debt service, at 20.1 percent in fiscal 2004 and 24.1 percent in fiscal 2005. For §4A corporations, the second-highest expenditure category in both fiscal years was direct business incentives, at 25.5 percent in fiscal 2004 and 24.4 percent in fiscal 2005.

State law limits both §4A and §4B corporations to spending no more than 10 percent of their revenues for promotional purposes, except in certain circumstances. The limit is increased to 25 percent in §4A(b)(2) of the statute for a §4A city:

- that has municipal limits including two counties;
- that has less than 24,250 residents, according to the 1990 federal census; and
- that is located within 10 miles of a federal military reservation.

The annual reports for fiscal 2004 indicate that 13 of the 209 §4A corporations spent more than 10 percent of their 2004 funds for marketing and promotion. Five of the 13 exceeded 20 percent. Of the 397 §4B corporations, 28 exceeded the 10 percent limit; 12 exceeded 20 percent (Appendix J).

In fiscal 2005, only nine of the 211 §4A corporations exceeded the 10 percent cap, with only four exceeding 20 percent. On the other hand, 37 of the 413 §4B corporations exceeded the 10 percent threshold, with 15 spending more than 20 percent on marketing and promotion.

While most §4A and §4B corporations appear to be complying with this provision, the act does not require a corporation to prove that it qualifies for an exception to the statute, and does not provide any penalty for those who exceed the limit. It also should be noted that some corporations exceeding the statutory limit may have carried forward unused revenues budgeted for marketing and promotion from the previous fiscal year. Attorney General Opinion GA-0086 states that “a corporation that chooses to spend revenues for promotional purposes may spend up to 10 percent of its annual revenues for that purpose or may set all or some of these funds aside in a promotional purposes account. A corporation that set aside revenues in such an account could spend those past-year revenues along with the allowable percentage of its current annual revenues for promotional purposes without violating the cap.”

The percentage of funds expended by §4A and §4B corporations by category varied significantly among cities of different sizes in fiscal 2004 and fiscal 2005 (Exhibits 6 and 7).

Section 4A corporations in the largest cities appear to be more administratively efficient than those in smaller cities, as their combined personnel and administrative costs as a percentage of total expenditures were lowest (Exhibit 6). In general, administrative and personnel costs rise as a percentage of total expenditures in proportion to the decline in city size, with one exception; §4A corporations in cities with a population between 30,001 and 75,000 spent higher percentages in these combined categories than cities in the 5,001 to 30,000 range.

The §4B corporations' capital costs as a percentage of total expenditures appear to rise as the size of the city increases, while the percentage spent on direct business incentives appears to fall (Exhibit 7).

There are anomalies, however, between the fiscal years and in certain size categories that suggest that some shift is occurring within these expenditure categories.

2005 Legislative Changes

The 2005 Legislature made a number of changes to the Development Corporation Act of 1979. Most of these changes resulted from the passage of H.B. 2928, which took effect on September 1, 2005. This bill broadened the allowable uses of the §4A and §4B revenues and carved out exceptions to the act that apply to various cities based upon geographic location or population.

To promote or develop new or expanded business enterprises, H.B. 2928 authorized all §4A and §4B corporations to expend sales tax revenues to fund site improvements and sewer utilities. Other provisions authorized §4A and §4B cities along the Gulf of Mexico to spend sales tax revenues to fund beach remediation and allowed cities within 25 miles of Mexico and with populations under 50,000 to fund project costs to develop and expand airport facilities.

H.B. 2928 also granted §4A and §4B cities in Hidalgo County authority to fund airports, ports, sewers and solid waste disposal facilities. Section §4B corporations in Dallas and Harris counties with fewer than 100 acres in their corporate and extraterritorial jurisdictions available for manufacturing or industrial facilities were authorized to fund retail projects.

The bill also authorized §4B corporations located in cities with 20,000 or fewer residents to offer direct incentives to promote new and expanded business development, including retail projects. This partially reversed H.B. 2912 enacted by the 78th Legislature, which effectively prohibited direct retail incentives for all economic development corporations. An additional provision requires the city council, after two separate readings, to pass a resolution confirming a §4B economic development corporation's action on any such project expending more than $10,000.

Other important 2005 changes to the Act resulting from the 79th Legislature include:

- H.B. 551, which allowed §4A and §4B cities to fund telephone call centers for companies exporting a majority of their products or services;
- H.B. 3036, which required §4A boards of directors to have at least five members, to serve terms not to exceed six years and to serve at the pleasure of the city council;
- H.B. 1253, which allowed §4A and §4B funds to be expended on the project costs of "career centers" as long as they are not located in the taxing jurisdiction of a junior college district; and
- S.B. 252, which permitted the expenditure of §4A and §4B funds to attract new military missions, prevent the closure of existing missions and to redevelop a closed or realigned military base.

Primary Economic Development Objectives

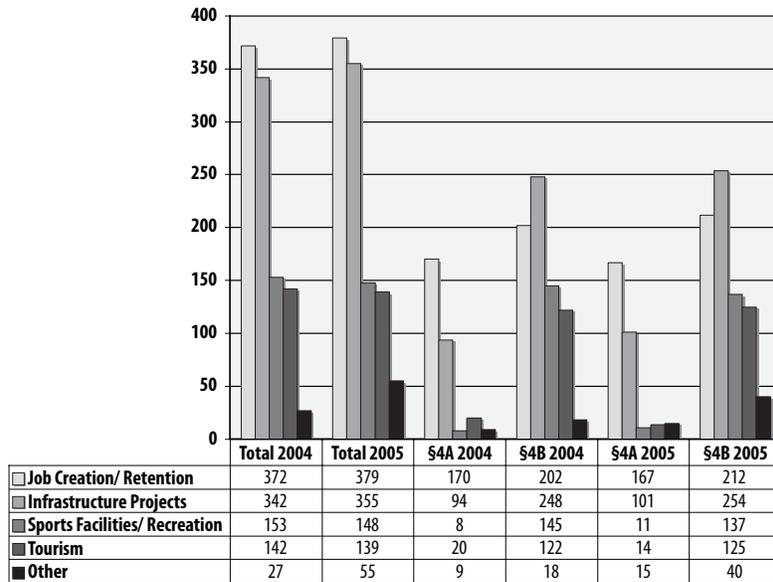

In fiscal 2004 and 2005, most corporations listed more than one primary economic development objective. Job creation/job retention was the preferred activity (Appendix C). Infrastructure projects came in a close second, followed by sports facilities/recreation, tourism and “Other,” in descending order (Exhibit 8).

Types of Capital Assets

Capital assets for fiscal 2004 and 2005 are found in Appendix D and Appendix E. Of the 624 corporations, 479 reported capital assets in fiscal 2005. The most common capital asset was cash, reported by 286 of the corporations. Land, including both acreage and lots, was second, reported by 205 corporations. Other capital assets included buildings/commercial buildings (111), industrial parks/sites (80), “other” (62), commercial buildings (57), equipment (46) and recreational facilities (38). The total number of reported assets exceeded the total number of corporations because many reported owning more than one asset type.

There was a significant difference between the percentage of §4A and §4B corporations reporting capital assets.

In fiscal 2005, 175 or 83 percent of the 211 §4A corporations reported owning capital assets, compared to 304 or 74 percent of the 413 §4B corporations.

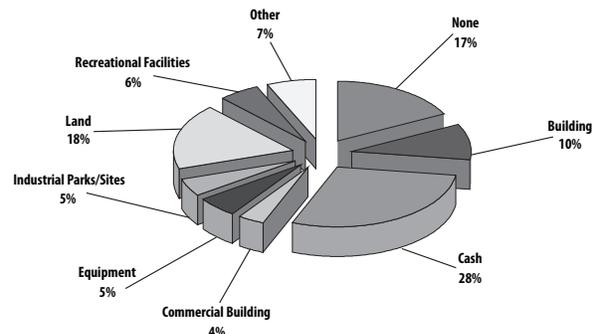

Exhibits 9a and 9b show the assets owned by the two types of corporations in fiscal 2005. There are, however, differences between the assets owned by §4A and §4B corporations. The largest disparity is found in categories pertaining to the ownership of real property. Ownership of “Industrial Parks/Sites” was much more common among §4A corporations, with 12 percent reporting ownership of this asset class compared to only 5 percent of §4B corporations. §4A corporations also had a greater percentage in the categories of “Land”, “Commercial Buildings” and “Building” than §4B corporations.

could be the result of some corporations expending funds for assets that are transferred to the city upon completion, such as park-related projects. In those cases, the capital asset would no longer belong to the corporation, but would become a capital asset of the city.

Seventeen percent of §4B corporations reported no assets, as did 9 percent for §4A corporations. This disparity

Emerging Trends Indicate Changes in Local Sales Taxes

Number of Economic Development Corporations Fiscal 1997 to 2005

Source: Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts.

Growth in the number of new §4A and §4B corporations has slowed in recent years, and trends seem to indicate some shift in the types of sales taxes being adopted by Texas cities. The chart above shows the increase in the number of corporations from fiscal 1997 to 2005.

Between fiscal 2000 and fiscal 2003, the total number of corporations grew by an average of 32.7 per year. In fiscal 2004 and 2005, total growth slowed to 18 per year. The average growth of 26.3 new §4B corporations from fiscal 2000 to fiscal 2003 slowed to 16 in fiscal 2005. While 6.3 new §4A corporations were added each year on average from fiscal 2000 through fiscal 2003, the number of §4A corporations increased by a total of just one in fiscal 2004 and two in fiscal 2005.

The city of Kemp switched their corporation from §4A to §4B in 2004. During the same period, Seabrook, a §4A city, and Coffee City, a §4B city, both notified the Comptroller’s office that they had determined to cease collecting the sales tax. The city of Krum abolished the §4B tax in 2004 and reinstated it in 2005.

The sales tax for street maintenance and repair authorized by the 2001 Legislature has had a noticeable effect on the §4A and §4B sales tax. This sales tax is proving to be quite popular. At this writing, 127 Texas cities have adopted this form of sales tax. The cities of Frankston, Gun Barrel City, Hill Country Village and Karnes reduced their §4B economic development sales tax from 0.5 cents to 0.25 cents in order to adopt the street maintenance and repair sales tax in a single ballot initiative, as authorized by Chapter 327 of the Texas Tax Code. Voters in Hollywood Park, Magnolia and Beasley also opted to reduce their §4B sales tax from 0.5 cents to 0.25 cents to adopt the street maintenance tax. The cities of Ranger and Prairie View reduced their §4A sales tax to adopt the street maintenance tax.

Another increasingly common sales tax is the sales tax to reduce property tax. First authorized by the 1987 Legislature and codified in Chapter 321 of the Tax Code, 334 cities had adopted the tax as of the end of fiscal 2005. From fiscal 2004 to 2005, 15 new cities adopted the sales tax to reduce property tax.
